What is MendelNet?

MendelNet is an interdisciplinary student conference that provides a unique platform for students and their mentors to meet and collaborate across fields primarily related to agricultural sciences.

The main goal of the conference is to actively present specific research topics, share knowledge, and exchange experiences among participants from various disciplines.

What is MendelNet?

The conference has a competitive format – individual contributions are evaluated by expert juries based on their scientific quality and relevance to the field. The best presentations will be awarded.

Conference Sections

- Agroecology
- Animal Biology
- Animal Production
- Chemistry and Biochemistry
- Engineering and Technology
- Plant Biology
- Plant Production
- Wildlife Research

Online registration

<https://af.mendelu.cz/en/mendelnet/>

In justified cases, the organizers reserve the right to assign speakers to a different section than the one indicated in the registration.

Registration closes on September 30!

Active participants of the conference that fulfill the following conditions will receive a Certificate of Attendance:

- complete the registration form,
- submit an abstract of the contribution (which will be published in the proceedings if the participant wishes),
- actively present the contribution in English (15 minutes: 10 minutes for the presentation and 5 minutes for discussion).

Hope to see you there!
